WIFE, THOUGH DIVORCED.

O'FARRELL'S WILL RECOGNIZES THE WOMAN HE FORGAVE.

23 Years Ago He Got a Divorce and 14 Years Ago He Took His Wife Back to Live with Her Until He Died-Leaves 8500,000 and Provides for Her Liberally.

The will of Daniel O'Farrell, who lived at 846 West Thirty-third street and who for about thirty years kept a furniture shop at 410-412 Eighth avenue, was offered for probate yesterday, Edward D. Farrell of 329 West Fifty-seventh street is named as the executor. The value of the estate was not estimated by the executor, but those who know something about it say that it will come to nearly $500,000. O'Farrell died on Jan. 5. He had been partly paralyzed for several years. He left a widow, a sister and several nieces and nephews, all of whom are legatees. The will was executed on Oct. 6, 1894. The provisions are unusual, since the widow, to whom is left a life interest in a large part of the estate, was once divorced by her husband. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Mooney. She married O'Farrell something like forty years ago. About twenty-three years ago, in the Court of Common Pleas, O'Farrell got a divorce. Fourteen years ago he condoned her offence and they agreed to live together again. In reference to this the will says:

The maiden name of my said wife was Elizabeth Mooney and she is the same person who was defendant in an action brought by me against her for a divorce and in which action I was granted a decree of divorce, and it is my will, intention, wish and direction that the said Elizabeth O'Farrell have the benefit of all the will, intention, wish and direction that the said Elizabeth O'Farrell have the benefit of all the legacies and benefits and provisions of this will so far as they are in her favor, notwithstanding such divorce. I have for the past fourteen years lived with her as my lawful wife and ecognized her as such in every manner and form that is possible to so recognize her, and I therefore desire the said decree of divorce to be null and void in every way, but the provisions of this will in her favor are intended by me, and, if accepted, by her, must be taken in lieu of all dower and distributive share of my estate."

The will then specifies that Mrs. O'Farrell shall have the life use of the testator's residence at 346 West Thirty-third street, his summer residence and stables at Long Branch, together with horses, carriages, paintings, furniture, family records and fixtures; that she shall enjoy for life the rents of the houses at 421 and 423 West Forty-second street and of the house at 230 West Forty-second street and of the house at 230 West Forty-second street and of the house at 230 West Forty-second street. The testator's sis er. Annie O'Farrell, is to have the life use of the house at 355 West Fifty-tourth street. Half the residue, leas the remainder in the life estates, is to go in equal shares to the Luttle Sisters of the Poor and the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. The other half of the residue, luttle Sisters of the Poor and the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. The other half of the residue, ins the remainder in the life estates, goes to the following nieces and nephews: Dominick, Mary, Ellen and Carharine O'Farrell, John, Alice, William and Henry, Higgins and Dennis and Alice O'Halloran, share and share alike.

OPERATIONS OF THE MACNAUGHTANS. Prosecution Under State Laws May Follow That in Federal Courts.

John J. Adams, the lawyer who set on foot the prosecution of the Macnaughtan brothers of the Tradesmen's Bank, says it will be several weeks before the full story of the operations of the Machaughtans and the wrecking of the bank can be known. The operations, Mr. Adams says, extended over three years. Six persons or concerns, besides the bank, the Macnaughtans utilized directly in the manipulation of credits, Mr. Adams, says-the Macnaughtan Company, which purported to deal in wool; Allan Macnaughtan, William Macnaughtan, James Macnaughtan, J. & A. Macnaughtan, the Wool Exchange Company and the Wool Warehouse Company. Besides these they made use of Howard M. Jacobs and a young man whose name is Woolworth, employee of the Wool Warehouse Company, to obtain loans on collateral furnished by the Macnaughtans, the employees turning over the money to their employers and acting at their direction. Woolworth, about 21 years old, so direction. Woolworth, about 21 years old, so urned over $75,000. These men are guiltless, according to Mr. Adams, having merely acted as told to by their employers.

All the checks that were kited among these concerns and individuals for the last three years are being traced, so far as possible. A second expert accountant has been put upon the work. Stock of the concerns controlled by the Macnaughtans would be handed over by them to the persons who were to obtain the loans, and the collateral would be accepted by the Macnaughtans' bank on days not director's meeting days, at the instance of President James Macnaughtan.

It appears, Mr. Adams says, that James Macnaughtan as President of the bank, was fully aware of the value of the securities which the bank accepted as collateral, since they were the stock of concerns controlled by himself. In one instance, the stock of one of these companies which had no value except on paper was exchanged by the system of interaccommodation in practice for stock of the bank, which on that day was worth 100 per bent.

What was done with all the money obtained

What was done with all the money obtained has not been learned. The next legal step will be the hearing bofore United States Commissioner Shields on Tuesday, when James and Alian Macanaghtan will be examined on the charge of consolracy and violation of section 5,208 of the National Banking act. Prosecution under the State laws for operations in connection with the Wool Warehouse Company may follow. The Macanaghtans secured the appointment of a receiver for this corporation in New Jersey and an ancillary receiver in this State. Mr. Adams, in behalf of the interests represented by him, requested the New York receiver to resign and when the facts of the Macanaghtans' operations came out the resincation. When he asks to be relieved the Court will in all probability appoint a receiver favorable to the interests represented by the people who have suffered from the operations of the Macanaghtans, and the exposure of the methods of the company and the prosecution of guilty persons will follow naturally. The charge in this case will be plain larceny. What was done with all the money obtained

BADGER MOORE MUST GO TO PRISON. Certificate of Reasonable Doubt Refused-

Fayne Moore Soon to Be Tried. The application of William A. E. Moore, the badger thief who was sentenced to nineteen years' imprisonment, for a certificate of reasonable doubt that his conviction will stand on appeal has been denied by Justice Nash of the Supreme Court. Unless Moore can get a stay from Justice Nash on appeal from the decision. he will have to begin the service of his term while the appeal is pending. There is small chance of such a stay, and the chances are that Moore will begin to serve his term next week. after the order is entered on the decision of Justice Nash. AThe certificate was applied for on claims that Improper evidence had been adduced at the trial and the Recorder had erred in his charge.

Justice Nash says:

The rights of the defendant throughout the conduct of the trial, including the charge of the tourt, seem to have been most carefully protected. I am unable to find that there was any error committed upon the trial which will warrant the granting of a certificate of reasonable doubt.

The District Attorney announced yesterday The District Attorney announced yesterusy has be would appear before Justice Fursman emorrow in the criminal branch of the Surieme Court and ask that a day be fixed for he trial of Mrs. Fayne Moore, who was jointly adjected with her husband on the charge of having worked the badger game upon Martin Mahoa, proprietor of the New Amsterdam Hotel.

Shortly after the arrest of the Moores." said the District Attorney yesterday." we heard that a Justice of a high court of another state that been a victim of these people. We were unable to run this report down."

Mrs. Moore received a number of visitors yesterday in her cell in the Tombs prison. Her mother. Mrs. Straham, was among those who called. She had come from Atlanta to see ner dutaliter. Mrs. Straham was accompanied by Col. James, a friend of the family from Atlanta, and by the Rev. Dr. Davis of Oakland, Ore.

PRIMARY AND ELECTION LAWS. Republican County Committee to Recom

The Republican County Committee will meet on Thursday evening to consider several changes in the Primary and Election laws, and to recommend to the Legislature that the laws be amended in several particulars. The members of the County Committee say that the Primary law is full of imperfections. The Republicans are opposed to the present system of enrolling The enrollment is supposed to be secret. In theory it is, but practically the enrollment on registration days is public, and during the last campaign the party managers had no diffleulty in finding out at the close of each day of registration just how many men had enrolled and with which party each had allied himself. The members of the County Committee say that the fact that the enrollment was not secret prevented many Republicans from putting their names on the list last year because they did not wish to have the Tammany watchers know how they were going to

The leaders are also opposed to the December enrollment by certificate. Their experience has taught them that men will not inter est themselves in political matters immediately after a campaign, and this lack of interest operates against the Republican party. The district leaders used their best endeav-ors to get voters who had not en rolled to do so after the close of the last campaign, but they had little success. They think that the law has failed in many particulars and they believe that they can get the Legislature to amend it so that it will be easier to carry out. Many of the County Committeemen are not in favor of changing the Election law, but some of them think it can be improved. This subject will come up for discussion, but whether any action will be taken is undecided. The City Club and the Bar Association are interested in the Election law, both working on the same lines, aithough the Bar Association is not as radical as the City Club. The lawvers want to have the law amended so as to provide that the names of candidates for judicial office shall not appear in the party columns at all, but shall be printed alphabetically on a separate ballot. The City Club wants to do away with the party column entirely and have the names of all candidates printed alphabetically in groups under the name of the offices for which they are running. A conference of all the people interested in this matter will be held soon.

The punishment of men who violated the Election law last year will also come before the committee. Congressman John Murray Mitchell's campaign committee has positive evidence against half a dozen violators of the law, and the cases will be pushed. Soveral leaders have been investigating affairs in their district, and have found evidence enough to warrant them in beginning prosecutions. In every case where there is a fair show of conviction prosecutions will be begun. The members of the committee are not in any that they have nothing to lose by waiting, and that the delay will give the criminals time to expose themselves. It is also thought that the moral effect of these prosecutions will be greater if the violators of the la v find that their crimes are not forgotten as soon as the polls close. after the close of the last campaign, but they had little success. They think that the law

INCREASES OF CITY PAYROLLS.

About $30,000 a Year Added or to Be Added to Pay of Present Employees.

Since Jan. 1 the City Record has recorded increases of the pay of about 150 city employees in all the boroughs, amounting in the aggregate to $16,200 annually. Many of the increases took effect in December, and there are said to be a number which have not been made public, and, although it is not possible to get at the exact figures, the total of increases in pay which are contemplated by the city officials, so far as is known, will amount annually to about $30,000. These figures do not include the mandatory increases made necessary by the operation of the charter.

Commissioner Keating of the Department of Highways announced the following increases yesterday: Secretary, from $3,000 to $3,500; chief clerk, from $3,000 to $3,500; cashier chief clerk, from $3,000 to $3,500; cashler, from $2,000 to $2,400; messenger, from $1,200 to $1,500; toolman, from (per diem) $2 to $3. Mr. Keating, does not give the names. Section 6528 of the charter says:

"There shall be published in the City Record within the month of January in each year a list of all subordinates employed in any department (except laborers), with their salaries and residences by street numbers, and all changes in such subordinates or salaries shall be published; within one week after they are made."

made."
Commissioner Kane of the Sewer Department announced the following increases; Joseph F. Hawkes, from clerk to appointment clerk, from $1,350 to $1,500; John J. Murray, from clerk to contract clerk, from $1,350 to $1,500; Nellie B. Graedy, stenographer and typewriter, from $1,000 to $1,200; William F.

$1,500; Nellie B. Graedy, stenographer and typewriter, from $1,000 to $1,200; William F. Brennan, from toolman to assistant foreman (per day), from $2.25 to $3.

The salary of Deputy Commissioner Goldner of Queens county was fixed at $3,000.

The School Board for Manhattan and the Bronx has fixed the following salaries: Thomas E. Bussey, assistant secretary, $2.500; Patrick J. O'Connor, clerk, $300; Thomas W. A. McConyille, office boy, $300; William H. McLaughlin, office boy, $300; Hannah Colbert, $50 a month; Florence W. True, $50 a month, $50 a month, $50 a month; Greene W. True, $50 a month, $50 a month, $60 and William J. Dolan, inspectors of plumbing, light and ventilation. As to John Haney, the (ity Record wagon driver, whose pay is $1,600, it was stated yesterday that he supplies a horse and wagon, and sometimes two.

Under the Consolidation act the heads of departments, in submitting their estimates of partments, in submitting their estimates of expenses to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, gave detailed lists of the employees and their pay. The money was appropriated for them. Now the money is appropriated in a nump sum, and, except where pay is fixed by the statutes, the department head apportions it as he pleases.

RATTLESNAKE MAN DEAD.

Old John C. Geer Traded in the Reptiles and Had a Cure for Their Bites. PORTJERVIS, Jan. 14.—News has just reached here of the death, at Long Eddy, Sullivan county, of John C. Geer, by profession a enteher and tamer of rattlesnakes and the discoverer of an alleged infallible cure for the bites poisonous reptiles. He was 85 years old. In his early years Geer was a Delaware River raftsman. He lived in a wild and mountainous part of Sullivan county, where rattlesnake dens were many, and from boyhood it was his delight to make raids on them in the early spring when the first warm days caused the snakes to erawl out on the ledges to sun themselves. Later he found it a profitable business to extract the oil from the snakes and sell it to the druggists for medicinal purposes. He also made a business of catching the snakes alive. and for years found a demand for all he could capture and ship to the New York market. At one time he shipped sixty-four rattlers in a dry goods box to Prof. Worth's museum in New York city. One of them bit the professor on the thumb. He was taken to the Chambers Street Hospital, where he remained six weeks, He came out with his life but prinus a thumb. Some time after the professor's mishap Geer obtained from an Indian herb doctor, in ex-

Some time after the professor's mishap Geer obtained from an Indian herb doctor, in exchange for some whiskey, his infallible cure for anake bites. Prof. Worth had an opportunity to test the remedy when a second time he was poisoned by the lang of a rattlesnake. Geer learned of his mishap, and by a messenger sent him the remedy, which cared him in twenty-four hours. Many snake-bitten people were cured by Geer.

In the last few years Geer's business of shipping rattlers was broken up. The shipments became so common that the trainmen objected strongly to handling the strong boxes in which the snakes were confined, being fearful of the result in case of accident. Their remonstrances brought about an order for the agent to refuse to receive the reptiles, and, although Geer protested vigorously and offered to give bonds to cure, free of charge, any one bitten by one of his anakes, the railroad officials refused to with draw the order. Geer threatened to appeal to the interstate Railroad Commissioners, but finally gave up the business in disguist. He continued, however, to sell the oil, skins, and rattles of the snakes.

His manner of catching snakes was simple. With a bag to put them in when caught a stick about as long as a hoe handle, with a hook at one end with which to pull them from the crevices of the rocks, and a shorter stick with a slipping noose to drop over their heads, he has been known to capture from two or three to a dozen or more in one trip. Once, with two assistants, he caught thirty-two ruttlesnakes ranging from three to five feet in length in a day.
